

What we do

We are an Indigenous-led organization dedicated to restoring the food systems that support Indigenous self-determination, wellness, cultures, values, communities, economies, languages, and families while rebuilding relationships with the land, water, plants, and animals that sustain us.

Our Work

Through our efforts and programs, we bring stakeholders and communities together to advocate and support best practices and policies that enhance dynamic Native food systems, sustainable economic development, education, trade routes, stewardship, and multi-generational empowerment.

Centering Land Stewards

We work to put the farmers, wild-crafters, fishers, hunters, ranchers, and eaters at the center of decision-making on policies, strategies and natural resource management.

Indigenous Seed Keepers Network (ISKN)

As a national network, we leverage resources and cultivate solidarity and communication within the matrix of regional grass-roots tribal seed sovereignty projects.

- Educational resources
- Mentorship training
- Outreach and Advocacy Support
- Organizes national/regional events and convenings.

Indigenous Seed Keeping Network

- Seed Sovereignty
- Seed Stewardship
- Seed Sovereignty Assessment Toolkit
- Indigenous Cooperative Seed Hubs
- Seed Rematriation #seedback
- Communications and Alliance Building

Native Food & Culinary Mentorship

Assists Native communities in reconnecting with their traditional diets and life-ways for the well being and health of their communities. It provides essential resources for Indigenous people to realize the potential for serving their own traditional, healthy foods in their communities and to the broader public.

Food Sovereignty Events

- Indigenous Food Summits
- Local, Tribal, Regional, National and International

Grantmaking

- Healing Meals Grants
- Seedkeeper Grants
- Seed Cleaning Equipment Grants

www.nativefoodalliance.org